

Enrollment Playbook

Policies, Handbooks, and Growth

Dr. Tamar Andrews
Tamar.Andrews@aju.edu
310-980-8629

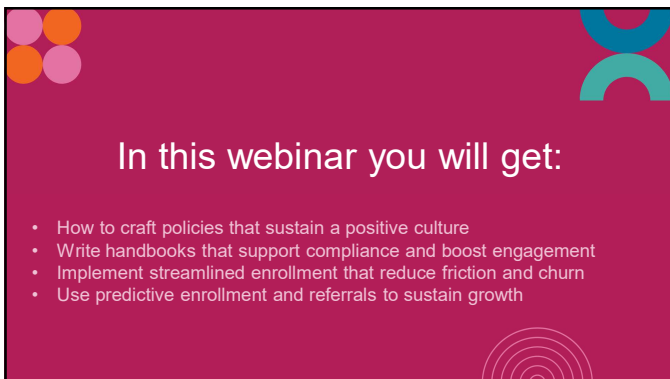

The slide features a dark blue background with decorative elements: a white spiral in the top left, two overlapping circles (light teal and dark teal) in the top right, and an orange semi-circle in the bottom left.

Enrollment isn't just paperwork

It may not be glamorous, but it's the foundation of your program's culture, finances, and relationships

The slide has a teal background with decorative elements: a white spiral in the top right, and two overlapping semi-circles (blue and red) in the bottom right, and two overlapping circles (orange and pink) in the bottom left.

In this webinar you will get:

- How to craft policies that sustain a positive culture
- Write handbooks that support compliance and boost engagement
- Implement streamlined enrollment that reduce friction and churn
- Use predictive enrollment and referrals to sustain growth

The slide has a maroon background with decorative elements: four overlapping circles (orange, pink, light pink, and light orange) in the top left, and two overlapping semi-circles (teal and blue) in the top right, and a white spiral in the bottom right.

Transparency is no longer optional & Professionalism

Paperwork shows parents and families that you run your center like a professional business.
Pricing, policies, calendars, and more

And there are hardships as well...

Practical Strategies

How do we make paperwork more manageable and effective?

POLICIES

The good, the bad, and the wonderful

1. Does your parent handbook scream "We love you!"
2. Does your parent handbook offer support?
3. Does your parent handbook feel more like a marriage contract or a real estate transaction?
4. Do you go over the parent handbook with families or just send it out and expect them to read it?
5. Do parents have an opportunity to weigh in on policies?
6. Do your policies support families first or your bottom line?
7. Do your policies feel like someone cares about the families?

- Do you have vague terminology in your handbook?
- Do you have excessively restrictive policies?
- Do you have inappropriate demands?
- Are you inflexible?
- Do families feel shut out?

BAD policies

Easiest way to lose

- No return after an appointment
- Zero outside food or comfort items
- Strict sick policies
- All children must be potty trained
- Immediate suspension for typical behaviors
- Excessive closures and paid absences
- Families not allowed in the building

Good policies

Clear and well-written

Children should be kept home if they have a fever of 100.4 F / 38 C or above when measured orally.

Children may return 24 hours after their fever has resolved without the use of fever-reducing medication and they feel well enough to participate in normal activities.

Trust

Linking paperwork to growth and confidence

When paperwork is consistent and appropriate, professional and positive, something powerful happens: parents feel secure.

EXAMPLE
 Child gets hurt

Paramedics are called

Teacher searches for the child's medical file

Here is a law firm that specializes in children's injuries at day care. Take a look at the website to help better inform your practice.
<https://yoshalawfirm.com/blog/use-daycare-for-child-injury>

CRM and Predictive Enrollment
 Easy for parents with auto-fill

All forms fully completed	Child Profile	Automated Billing
Parents easily fill out enrollment docs Auto-fills similar information reducing amount of time Parents can see schedules Newsletters Sign in and out is simple Subsidy attendance is integrated	Birthdays, Allergies Meal subsidies Demographics Medical forms Guardians, Siblings	Tuition Payment plans Invoiced automatically Auto pay feature Families can pull their own tax docs Billing alerts

What else should you know about paperwork, enrollment, documents, and your overall playbook?

The weakest part of your program detracts from the strongest part of your program. Make sure that your initial contacts with families, aside from your amazing personality, includes very concise, clear, detailed documents, forms, contracts, policies, fee schedules, etc.

For families	For teachers	For you
It builds trust, commitment, good advertisement, support, and a sense of being well cared for.	It builds trust, commitment, good advertisement, longevity, high morale, sense of ownership, feeling of being in on things, higher quality practices, and a sense of being well cared for.	Peace of mind... The ability to take a vacation every now and then. Not working 12-14 hour days.

Embrace help!

In a field built on nurturing others, ECE professionals frequently forget that seeking help is also an act of professionalism, not a sign of weakness.

Dr. Tamar Andrews
310.980.8629
Tamar.Andrews@aju.edu

Follow me on LinkedIn for educational videos, job postings, and more.

